Fintech and New Technologies in Business

Our team of specialists provides advice to various regulated and non-regulated entities from the perspective of Mexican law that use technology in the development of their businesses.

Our firm's lawyers advise on the incorporation, authorization, registration and/or day-to-day regulatory compliance process, as required, of regulated entities such as financial technology institutions (including both crowdfunding institutions and electronic payment fund institutions), credit institutions, broker dealers, multiple purpose financial companies (SOFOMES), and popular financial institutions (SOFIPOS). Also, our team of specialists provides advice to companies that, through the use of new business technologies, offer different products and services in Mexico or abroad.

Furthermore, our experts advise those entities that, through their electronic systems, promote the execution of credit transactions (with and without collateral) between different actors of the fintech ecosystem, as well as companies that use new digital platforms to carry out their business purpose, either inside or outside the Mexican territory but with financial or operational effects within such territory.

The multidisciplinary team positions the Firm in an unparalleled manner to (i) advise various domestic and foreign investors on capital investments or disinvestments made in the different stages of a company, (ii) advise on general corporate aspects as well as on regulatory compliance, depending on the legal nature of the respective entity, (iii) assist in the registration of trademarks and patents, (iv) identify processes for the treatment of personal data, information technology and privacy, (v) advise investors and companies in the adequate compliance of their tax obligations, and (vi) if necessary, advise on the prevention of money laundering, corporate governance, anti-corruption, among others.
